PROTECTING YOUR RIGHTS

Robert C. Stone Helps Clients Through Difficult Times

FOR MORE THAN FORTY YEARS, Robert C. Stone has passionately represented both personal injury clients and those charged with crimes. One day he may be representing someone severely injured in an automobile accident. The next day, he may be defending someone arrested for drug possession. Every day that he walks into his Boca Raton office, he puts his many years of experience to work for his clients.

A graduate of American University in Washington, D.C., Stone earned his law degree from George Washington University, providing him with the education and legal expertise needed to successfully represent clients.

During his career, Stone has completed more than 100 jury trials and hundreds of state and federal cases defending individuals and corporations throughout the United States. His ability to skillfully navigate the complexities of the legal system has resulted in his much-deserved reputation as a top-tier advocate for his clients.

His firm has successfully litigated on behalf of clients injured by defective or dangerous products, including women who experienced serious medical complications after receiving transvaginal mesh implants.

“We have big-firm capabilities with that small-firm compassion,” Stone says.

He is well-respected among his peers and, as a result, receives many of his cases from attorney referrals. Clients who hire Stone to represent them in their personal injury cases can rest assured that the only thing they will have to worry about is recovering from their injuries while he focuses on recovering damages. He is prepared to guide you through the complex legal system.

“From the initial investigation to the conclusion of the trial, our firm stands by our clients throughout the entire process,” he says.

Stone prides himself on being affordable and accessible to anyone who needs his legal expertise.

“We recognize that every client is unique and every case is different,” he says. “We are prepared to listen to your needs and create a legal strategy designed specifically for you.”
